

CONTENTS

Special Issue Editor's Introduction

- The COVID-19 Pandemic: An Environmental Humanities Perspective
Tatiana Konrad and Savannah Schaufler 68

Articles

- From Anthropause toward a More Ethical Whole-Earth Vision
Julie Hawkins 72
- Unmasking Environmental Injustice: Intersectional Perspectives on COVID-19 'Social Distancing' and the Exclusion of Marginalized Communities
Nadine Jackson 88
- Environmental Degradation, COVID-19, and Respiratory Health for Rohingya Refugees in Cox's Bazaar
Abellia Anggi Wardani, Tengku Shahpur, and Thurain Soc 109
- Understanding the Surge of Deforestation during COVID-19 Lockdown: Local Perception of Illegal Timber Trade in Karen (Kayin) State, Myanmar
Riyad Febrian Anwar 120
- Sounding the Impact of COVID-19 on Environmental Health in Lagos, Nigeria
Deborah Temisan Lawal 135
- Articulating Visual Infrastructures of COVID-19 in the Global South through Pandemic Photography
Paromita Patranobish 150
- Reality TV Meets Environmental Realities: Plastic Pollution in 7 vs. Wild
Savannah Schaufler 169
- COVID-19 at the Zoo: Racial Capitalism, Immunity, and the Zoo
Ishaan Selby 189

Ecocene Arts

Dialogues Across Human and More-Than-Human Worlds prOphhecy sun	201
Let All Things Pass Through Me Boya Liang	204
The Image as a Felt Thing: Ambivalent Gestures in Motherhood and Painting Laura Rosengren	212
Seeds Over Stems Emma Pallay	223

Issue Cover Credits, “Folding Laundry, 2025.” Courtesy of Laura Rosengren, the artist.